Pat Moore joined the MJ team in 2016 and currently serves as a consultant within our Benefits Consulting department. In his role, Pat collaborates with HR managers and corporate officers to develop employee benefit programs that align with their ultimate business goals. Through this effort, he and his team help to identify the primary cost drivers affecting their client's benefit plans and work to develop tailored solutions designed to mitigate costs while creating a comprehensive, forward-thinking program.

Pat brings nearly a decade of sales and industry experience to the team. His expertise lies in employee benefits strategy, plan design, and cost containment initiatives. Specializing in identifying and implementing various employee benefits solutions to a wide range of industries, Pat and his team aim to help clients focus beyond benefits to become better, smarter, and more successful.

Outside of MJ, Pat's biggest passions are his family and sports. He and his wife share two young children, Landon and Berkeley. Pat is a fan of several Arizona sports teams, particularly the Arizona State Sun Devils, the Arizona Cardinals, and the Arizona Diamondbacks. Pat played golf professionally for three years following his collegiate career at ASU and hopes to play Augusta National with his dad one day. Also, not many people know that Pat completed Ironman Arizona in 2013!
