Angelica Audiss became a valuable member of the MJ team in 2017, initially joining as a population health + wellness strategist in the Benefits Consulting department. Angelica quickly was promoted to the position of population health + wellness manager. Throughout her tenure, she has continued to excel and show passion for providing exceptional client experience, leading her to her current role as client executive.

As client executive, Angelica coordinates with all team members to ensure timely execution of all projects. Her responsibilities extend beyond internal coordination, as she actively cultivates positive relationships with key individuals at third-party administrators (TPAs), carriers, and vendors.

Prior to joining MJ, Angelica worked as a wellness and benefits administrator where she coordinated and managed the organization's benefits program as well as a variety of engaging wellness programs including on-site fitness, group incentive programs, educational seminars, and digital solutions. Angelica's dedication to providing clients with optimal solutions and strategies for their benefit plans makes her an invaluable asset to our team.

Outside of the office, Angelica is passionate about her personal wellbeing and loves to run, hike, and explore new places. She keeps a whole lists of goals and things she wants to do one day including hiking the Grand Canyon rim to rim and visiting Havasupai, an American Indian reservation. Her other goals include skydiving, running a marathon, and traveling to every continent.
