Brea Dantin is a retirement plan advisor and chief operations officer in the MJ Retirement department where she advises retirement plan committees and oversees the department's operations. Drawing on over two decades of specialized experience in retirement savings and employee benefits, Brea possesses an unparalleled ability to stay abreast of trends in the retirement plan industry. Leveraging this expertise, she assists clients in optimizing their plans for both plan sponsors and participants alike.

Brea's interest in the financial industry led her to a career where she quickly discovered the perfect fit for her skills. A natural leader, her motivation stems from a passion for coaching those in need of financial support, and she finds continual inspiration in the challenge of guiding groups of employees toward a secure retirement.

Outside of work, Brea's personal life centers around quality time with family, friends, and her numerous furry companions. She and her husband are long-time residents of Westfield, Indiana. Additionally, she enjoys traveling to warm destinations such as Florida, New Orleans, and Mexico.
